POISONOUS BEAUTY. The natural desire of all to display what personal attractions they may possess, to the best possible advantage, and the pleasure which all mankind, whether civilized or savage, take in looking upon a beautiful female face, has led the weaker sex in many instances to commit violations of sense, which cause feelings of deep regret and commiscration in the breast of every on very favorable terms, to which we invite the true man and woman. There is no custom so foolish and frivolous as that of painting the face, or endeavoring to obtain by artificial means an unpatural complexion; and this system, which, at first we are inclined to regard a simply childish, assumes the graver nature of a crime when we regard the means adopted to attain this silly end. For example:-Arsenic is used in great quantities to produce a healthy look, ruby lips, and rotundity of form, and we have it on good authority that in many parts of Europe, and for aught we know to the contrary, in America, arsenic is eaten in large quantities, and Dr. Tsehudi, the well known traveller, says, "it does not seem to have any more pernicious effect than opium esting," as if that was not bad enough!-Many tons weight of arsenic are sold aunually in the form of cosmetic powders for outward application.

Bismuth and antimony are also largely without which ladies do not consider their toilets complete, and much as they may abhor the character of a Borgia or Brin villiers, they are themselves provided with two females; the difference being that one is doing all she can to poison herself, and the others poisoned their friends. It is said of a celebrated actress, that she must in her litetime have used half a hundred weight Pant Stuffs, Vestings; Cloths, &c , with a of oxyde of bismuth in the shape of coametic powders, and the pearl powders, rouges, W E CALL attention to our large stock of and the whole army of so-called beautifiers DRY GOODS, suited to the wants of are all, more or less, highly poisonous.—
